

WHO IS RESILIENCY FLORIDA?

Resiliency Florida is a leading voice in Tallahassee and Washington, D.C., helping communities in their efforts to plan and adapt for the future impacts of extreme weather and sea level rise.

We are a non-profit organization made up of public and private partners dedicated to promoting the development of state and regional strategies and action plans to adapt to extreme weather and sea level rise. We advocate for increased investment by the state and federal governments for critical infrastructure, habitat protection, mitigation projects and development of adaptation responses throughout Florida.

WHAT DO WE DO?

- Promote greater understanding of the impacts of extreme weather events and sea level rise
- Develop regional, state and federal policy and strategies
- Serve as a conduit for developing local government and private sector partnerships
- Advocate for funding resiliency and adaptation strategies at the state and federal levels

WHY SHOULD YOU JOIN?

- Recognition as a member of an innovative social advocacy nonprofit
- Access to local governments and private-sector entities as members
- Access resources and share best management practices with members and academic partners
- Member editorials in news outlets and monthly newsletter

OUR ACCOMPLISHMENTS

- Resiliency Florida has started the resiliency discussion in the state capitol
- To date, we presented to the House Natural Resources and Public Lands Committee and to the Senate Appropriations Subcommittee on the Environment and Natural Resources
- Our future goal will be to parlay the resiliency discussion into policies and funding to become a more resilient Florida
